Bullying is an important issue that is definitely seen in our world these days. There are various explanations why children or youngsters bully other children. The majority of the community has been or will be bullied throughout their school-age life. The effects of bullying on kids can be devastating; it can create social separation or even suicide. The common reason of bullying is families' situations that lead to health, wealth and relationship complications in long-time period. Bullying is when somebody or a group of individuals who have more power, persistently and intentionally cause harm or trouble for someone else or group of individuals who really feel helpless to react.

Olweus says there are usually three types of bullying on school-aged children. The first one is physical bullying that involves physical damage and damage to property. Second most common type is called verbal bullying, which contains any type of verbal provocation such as abusive language, insults or racial comments. The next type is cyber bullying; it comprises sending unpolished images, tweeting slang memos, or posting false web pages. There are several different effects which bullying can have on children. Nowadays social separation is a main problem in kids. When children are bullied for a long period of time, it can make them feel inferior and unconfident in themselves that can have a bad effect on the way they intermingle in public. A research shows there are numerous cases of student committing suicide for the past few years. However, sometimes victims go for revenge against the bully with severe acts of violence. Besides, all these people lose their trust in relations, their competence to love and more importantly they restrict themselves to be in a well-meaning relationship in future. Along with all these problems, bullying can also disturb victims' health; they may suffer from eating disorder or might hurt themselves.

When it comes to all-protein diet for weight loss, people keep on asking if it is possible to diet only eating the meats you love. The all-protein diet is a meat diet plan that doesn't make you give up on eating meat. It is a diet where you reduce intake of carbohydrates such as that found in rice, bread, and vegetables while chewing down on meats and fish satisfying your appetite. By eating meat and eliminating sugars and carbohydrates that turn into fat, you can reduce body fat as well as strengthen your metabolism promoting smoother weight loss.

To ensure your success in weight loss, there are rigid rules you need to follow while you are on the all-protein diet. First, you only eat low-fat content meat, fish, or boiled eggs as the main course in your meal. You can eat as much meat as you like as long as it's not fatty. When eating fatty meats, be sure to remove as much fat as you can before eating. When you don't have as much time to cook, eating a hard-boiled egg would be a good substitute for convenience in your diet.

Second, you need to greatly reduce the amount of rice, bread, and vegetables in your diet to a minimum. This may include simply eating half the amount you would eat when not on the all-protein diet. Although most diets say that you should get vegetables in your diet as much as you can, on the all-protein diet you want to reduce carbohydrate intake, staying away from starches like high-carb potatoes. If you really want to have some vegetables, make sure to treat yourself to a healthy vegetable snack such as bowl of Vitamin K rich cucumbers. Eating snack in between meals is fine as long as you stick to meats, fish, and chicken eggs.

Third, you need to screen what you use in seasoning your food. Paying close attention to the things you use to season your food such as sugar or sweet rice wine is important. Note that flour used in frying seafood contains carbohydrates. Always confirm how much carbohydrates you are adding before cooking.

In conclusion, the all-protein diet is a diet where you try not to eat any carbohydrates. If you can't get your hand out of the cookie jar, the all-protein diet may not be right for you.

- 31 What is most likely the purpose of this passage?
(A) To promote the all-protein diet. (B) To stress the importance of meat.
(C) To ensure healthy ways of seasoning food. (D) To show problems of eating carbohydrates.
- 32 What is the main idea of the third paragraph?
(A) The all-protein diet is quite different from most eating habits.
(B) The all-protein diet greatly cuts down on carbohydrate intake.
(C) Most diets allow people to eat different snacks between meals.
(D) Most diets discourage people to eat vegetables as much as they can.

- 33 Which of the following is NOT true about the rules for people on the all-protein diet?
 (A) They need to stay away from carbohydrates. (B) They need to stick to low-fat meat and fish.
 (C) They cannot have any snack between meals. (D) They can only use certain seasonings in food.
- 34 What does “rigid” in the second paragraph mean?
 (A) Strict. (B) Direct. (C) Classic. (D) Frequent.
- 35 Which of the following can be inferred from this passage about the all-protein diet?
 (A) It doesn’t require people to give up their old eating habits.
 (B) It’s especially suitable for people who want to gain weight.
 (C) It may help people develop a balanced intake between meat and vegetables.
 (D) It may not be a good choice for people who cannot give up on eating cookies.
